Subject of Review: Brexit marked the beginning of a new era in European trade with implications for global commerce as the United Kingdom (UK) seeks to broaden its import sources for agricultural commodities. Since formally leaving the European Union, the UK has kept strong ties to the European bloc, but to a receding degree. This analysis seeks to quantify the degree of change in the EU-UK trade dynamic across of a range of agricultural commodity groups by examining the difference in trade trends between the rest of the world and each of the trading partners relative to their average trade over the last decade.

Purpose of Review: The purpose of the review is to ensure the high-quality of the economic analysis, transparent explanation of methods, objective interpretation of results, and effective communication to the intended audience.
